DEDICATION

TO

MR. R. F. GRUBER

To the man who has guided us through the conditions of the last two years with unfailing dependability and encouragement, in grateful appreciation of his loyalty, we dedicate this ECHO.

"Learning without thought is labour lost; thought without learning is perilous" —Confucius.

Class Poem

"Why do you not study the Book of Poetry? It serves to stimulate the mind"

-Confucius.

WE ALL GO FORTH TOGETHER

Life's clarion call is ringing
In our half-reluctant ears,
Merry mem'ries it sets singing
Of the youthful yesteryears;
With quick'ning heart we heed the past
As the future looms before—
We go forth to face life's manhood
To return to youth no more.

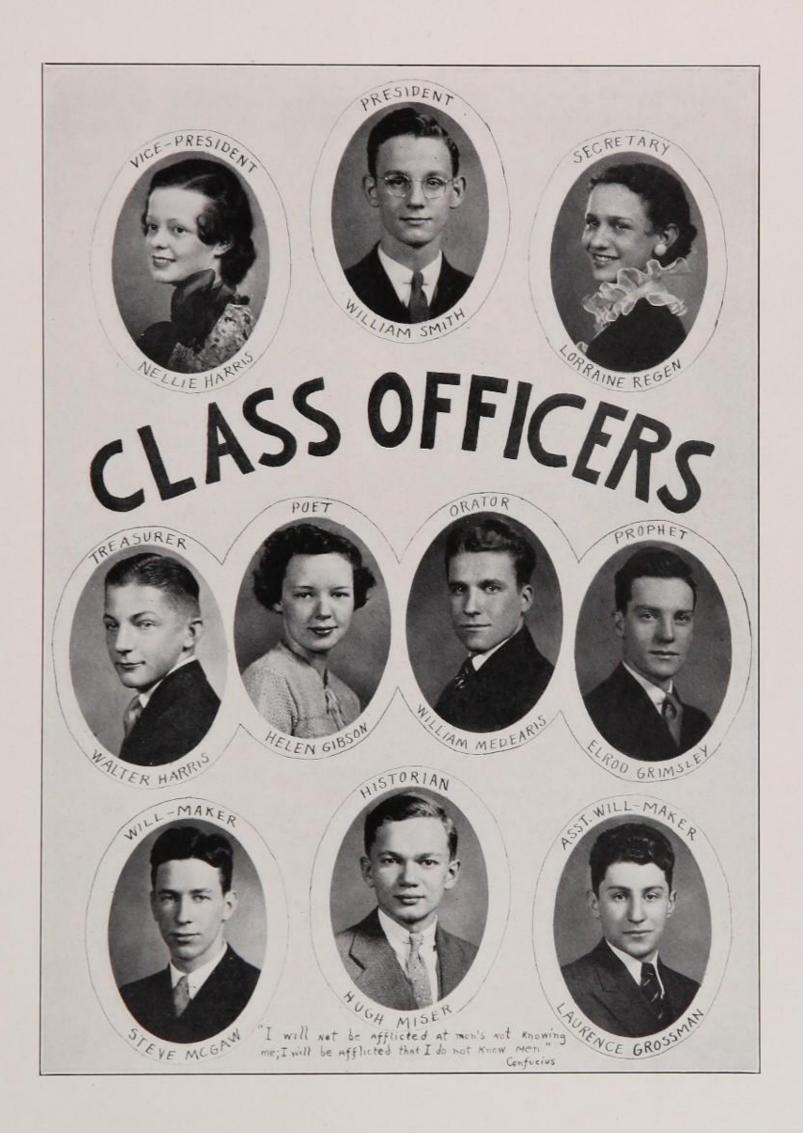

Now Earth's full life and loveliness
Ours to cleave to or forsake;
And the building stones to true success
Must mark off each old mistake.
We must forth to face the future
We will wage a battle strong—
And in every coming conflict
This will be our battle song:

We all go forth together—
To laugh, to love, to live!
And every storm we'll weather
Through the comradeship we give;
United heart, united mind,
We'll fight one for the other,
And through our close companionship,
We'll brother be to brother.

Class Prophecy

"If a man take no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand"—Confucius.

Eighth and Broad—how precious little twenty-five years had changed the spot!

I stood on the northwest corner, leaned against the plate-glass window of the drug store there (as I must have done a thousand times then) pretended the little brief case in my hand was a set of burdensome books and for a moment allowed myself to feel that I had just completed six gruelling hours behind those cold, bleak walls facing me and that I was waiting for the trolley to carry me home to temporary freedom.

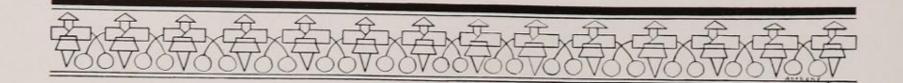

I smiled at the thought. I don't know why—I just smiled. Then a sensation of an entirely different sort swept over me. It completely destroyed the smile and the feeling of joyful relief. Those three years in Hume-Fogg weren't so bad at that, I thought. No, certainly, because there was a switching and drawing way down inside of me and at the moment I wished it all weren't merely history.

I turned to leave it all—even the sensation—maybe for another twenty-five years. I didn't know. I had taken two steps west when suddenly my attention was arrested by an aged negro sitting in front of the drug store. Over his eyes was a pair of smoked spectacles indicating complete blindness; in his lap was a stack of papers. So Jim, too, had stuck it out!

For three solid years—back then—I had seen him almost daily, and, without taking particular notice, had listened to his guttural mumbling. Today, however I patronized him for the first time.

I didn't realize at the moment how valuable was to be that three-cent purchase. I didn't realize that the next hour or so was going to be one of the happiest, most enjoyable of my life. And it merely consisted of my standing on the corner of Eighth and Broad and reading the first Nashville newspaper I had seen in twenty-five years.

I unfolded the paper slowly and was about to proceed when—well, the streamer across the front page almost startled me from my pinnings. Glaring out at me in the boldest, blackest type possible was the headline "WILLIAM SMITH ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR ATTORNEY—GENERALSHIP." Beneath it was the sub-head "Incumbent John Cobb Senses Stiff Opposition." I went on to read that such prominent citizens as Harry Akin, John Hanson, Claude Temple, Gordon Marston, Kenneth Laughbaum and O. C. Follis were backing Smith in his fight. Those names being quite familiar I speeded on. Cobb's managers: Louis Tresch, Andrew Nixon, Robert Landis, Clyde Hughey, and Edward Free, were lining up machinery in anticipation of the closest race ever run.

Farther down the column it was announced that Rodney Leftwich was opposing Lawrence Nicholson for the state railroad commissioner and the following were opposed to each other in city council elections: W. C. Gross vs. Harry Riley; Herman Floyd vs. Wesley Mintzer; Jordan Stephens vs. James Robinson; Mildred Finley vs. William White; Betty Sue Roberson vs. Rebecca Foster.

Sheriff Naomi Kiger, the first woman sheriff in the city's history was startling the section with the announcement that she was going to deputize six women. These were Elizabeth Anthony, Margaret Balthrope, Marion Schneider, Hazel Deford, Harriet Jones and Dorothy Goldin. Losing jobs because of this noble gesture were Robert Newson, Edward Young, Preston Walker, Milus Hassell, Leroy Evans, and John Carney.

An item elsewhere on the front page revealed that Lieutenant Alfred Torrey and Lieutenant Bernie Weinman, famous aviators, were paying the city a visit. They were special guests of the 105th Observation Corps at a luncheon at which Lieutenant Robert Skidmore and Captain Roy Wallace were principal speakers.

Superintendent John O'Connor of the City Board of Education had called a meeting of the members of that august body. Those named as members were Misses Mary Frances Black, Athene Hembree, Eva Craddock, Pat Saigh, Charles Smith and Julian Moore.

Vanderbilt had just announced its faculty. The list included such names as Morton Hendrick, professor of English; Hugh Miser, professor of Mathematics; Graham Finley, Latin Department; Mary Morton, science department; and Helen Gibson, English department.

Elbur Baskette, head of the local weather bureau, was quoted as saying that spring had definitely arrived.

I had only to pass my eyes to the left of the page to learn that Edward Gaddes, and Bennie Schulman had been named to honorary positions in a national astronomical society. Several Nashvillians were members of the group, among them, Elinor Allen, Jewell Chandler, Doris Connell, Grace Lutz, Virginia Maddox and Roy Harris.

Finding nothing more of interest on the front page I turned and discovered that the next page was the editorial page. Standing out was a clever cartoon by Steve McGaw, staff cartoonist. I found that the sheet in my hand was edited by James Penrod. His capable staff included Elizabeth Noe, Agnes Hawkins, Edith Levy, Billie Green, Beatryce Mason, Ellen Grace Reese, Rachael Hill, Joe Harrison, Clifton Floyd and Thomas Penrod.

Dr. Carolyn Richardson's column "DIETS" apparently was a daily feature. Advertisements scattered through the paper were fraught with familiar names.

I especially noticed "M. C. Chamber, Shoes"; "Leonard Hyman, Pawn Broker"; "David Manas, Dry Goods"; "Medearis Brothers (William and Frank), Termite-Exterminators"; "Christian (Dick) and Waseman (Emory), Real Estate"; "Jim Reed, Chevrolets"; "Hoots (Felix) and Tucker (Homer), Electrical Supplies"; "Bruce (Harry) and Roberts (Maynard), Used Cars"; "McClearen (Donald), Tires"; "Shockley (Gerald) and Head (Clarence), Packards."

A page entitled "THEATRICALS" added further to my enlightenment. Laurence Grossman was proving highly successful as musical comedy director. His next presentation was a novel act featuring the return of a galaxy of former stage and screen luminaries. Among the outstanding stars to be presented on the occasion were Fannye Rose Shore, Ann Elizabeth Fahey, Pauline Arnold, Kitty Gene Howard, Annie Sue Bates, Jessie Lane, Pauline Newsom, Nancy Poage, Lera Ray, Elizabeth Carney, Athene Inman, Evelyn Miles, Pauline Miles, Gania Dolyny, Dorothy Edwards, Mary W. Gillespie and Leroyce Glass.

Philip Card and his nationally-known orchestra were appearing at a local theater with Kate Evans as soloist. Members of the orchestra were Saul Feldman, Neil Wright, Leonard Kornman, Harry Womack, Henrietta Zophi, Wade Foster, George Green, William Goodman, Mae Lorraine Scarborough, Robert Johnson, Lewis Eubank, Ella Pennington, Nelle Phillips, Lena Thurman, Helen Sanders, Francis Fly and Charles Paysinger.

Nellie and Mary Eleanor Harris were editors of the society page to which I next turned.

Mary Wattles and Sue Pickard were principal speakers at an annual luncheon of the Rho Aphta Rho sorority. Attending the luncheon were Betty Hornby, Jessie Elizabeth Parrish, Edith Kinnard, Cornelia Payne, Virginia Brock, Nannie Lou Williams, Lillian Hill, Rosemary Williams, Bessie Bass, Martha Johnson, Mary Margaret Polk, Helen Redman, Martha Hunter, and Billie Alice Northern.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bryant (Virginia Griffith) had the day previous celebrated their twentieth anniversary with a brilliant affair at their home on Harding Road. Listed among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hornberger (Lorraine Regen); Mr. and Mrs. Tom Doss (Sue Sutherland); Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pigg (Jackie Leighton); Mr. and Mrs. Wilmont Winkler (Lillie Mai Springer); Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Kinnard (Rebecca Rice); Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harris (Thelma Reeves).

The "So-So Sewing Circle" held its weekly meeting at the home of Catherine Cohen. Much sewing and more jabbering was accomplished by Helen Ruth Smith, Mary Margaret Hampson, Melba Thompson, Alma Miller, Beatrice Kimsey, Virginia Mintzer, Evelyn Karr, Muriel Uhlian, Mildred Bailey, Virginia Wims, and Julia Frances Johnson. Irene Flowers, Esther Cox and Harriet Hutchison regretted to be absent because of domestic duties.

Mrs. Frank Rutherford (Sarah Marbury) was elected president of the local chapter of the Parent-Teachers Association, read another item, and she delivered the principal address at a meeting attended by Mrs. Eugene Jackson (Marjorie Binkley), Annie Laura Smith, Adelaide Harris, Mrs. William Brinton (Frances Houston), Alice Perkerson and Mrs. Arthur Pennington (Claudine Woodward).

An announcement elsewhere requested the presence of the following members of the Theater Guild for a rehearsal of "EGGS and BUTTERMILK": Mary Stansbury, Lois Castleman, Emma Bass, Katherine Barnes, Helen Swann, Leona Jackson, Lucile Ritt, Mary Alice Swann, Rachel Estes, and Sara Nell Fite.

Rev. Jenell Greer, another small item read, was staging a revival twice daily at the Tabernacle. Listed as members of her world-famous women's choir were Marjorie Hussey, Dorthay Bell, Ruby Mai Throneberry, Nannie Lee Hackett, Pauline Pitt, Jane Wallace, Virginia Frank, Rixford Williams, Mary G. Harris, Emilye Towe and Jennie Barnes.

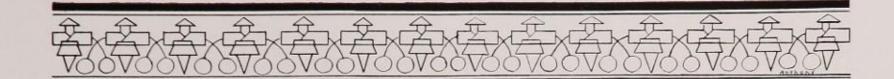

Opposite, occupying a lone niche in some thousand small want ads was a small cartoon by Edgar Hertenstein entitled "BELIEVE IT IF YOU WANT TO." It gave me a big kick to read that Joe Doochin, the most-married man, was divorcing his thirteenth wife. Former victims as listed by Hertenstein were Rachel Duncan, Edith Elterman, Fannie Dora Bittner, Helen Margaret Melton, Mary Lois O'Kain, Margaret Harris, Elizabeth Blunkall, Rose Karr, Margaret Lyne, Claire Harrison, Sarah Pegram, Eileen Cole and the current Elizabeth Mayfield.

A radio program had the following listings: "Rosemary Clayton and Mildred Byrd, soloists"; "Katherine Groom, pianist"; "Dorothy Popkin, dramatic critic"; "William Pewett and Marvin Owen, yodelers"; "Dorothy Vincent, Katharine West and Charles Haury, The Three Gulley-Jumpers"; "Clara (Leadbeater), Lu (Emma Louise Neal) and Em (Emma Lucille Arnette)"; "The Three Bees (Lillian Bradley, Kathryn Brannon and Mildred Burklin)"; "The Nickle-Plated Quartet (Alex Kelley, Charles Marks, Charles Sipe and Battle Klyce)"; "Silly Songs by Smith (Margaret Elizabeth), Slack (Helen Frances), and Sparks (Carletta)"; "The Key-Ticklers—Estelle Whitworth and Gladys Martin."

I licked my thumb and turned to the sport page. George Morrissey, Sports Editor, had devoted his column on that day to Harold Epperson, the second "Londos," who at the age of forty-four was retiring from the wrestling racket. He had been champion and undefeated for ten years.

There were numerous miscellaneous sports stories written by Morrissey's assistants, Rebecca Cullom, Levi Wade and John Williams.

The outstanding football coaches over the country were in confab in Nashville to discuss changes in the rules. Among those attending the meeting with their wives were Mr. and Mrs. John Shapiro (Ruth Harmon), Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neil (Virginia Harber), Vanderbilt; Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson (Dorothy Strickland), Duke; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Faust (Clarice Lanier), Southern California; Mr. and Mrs. William Lauderdale (Frances Harrison), Fordham.

Nancy Shaw, director of athletics at the local Y. W. C. A., had appointed directors of various activities for the coming year—so read a report. The list announced included Rachel Cullom, Clara Seagraves, Edna Cox, Margaret Price, Willo B. Collier, Leona Russell, Ann Phillips, Marie Shepherd, Welcome Wiesehan and Thelma Badgett.

Rebecca Smith had the day before captured the city golf title for women by defeating Ruth Reeves in the finals. The finalists had disposed of Suelnor Cooper and Ada Lee Sidwell in the semi-finals. Winners in the lower flights were Janice Phillips, Virginia Jett, Rose Silverman and Geneva Mai Ridings.

R. J. Hewitt, front office man for the Nashville Vols was predicting a pennant for his club under the management of Tom Glascock.

City bowling league standings showed Beulah Schklar, Louise Thompson, Margaret Sharpe and Dorothy Bernstein pacing the fairer pin-pushers and Knox Talley, J. W. Hooker, Howard Grimes and Shirley Coles were the leading men.

Close to the end of the paper I was attracted to a column headed "Winchelling." Louis Steinberg was the author. I read: "Conway Thompson, that very eligible bachelor, has annexed four more hearts—crepes to Virginia Wallace, Josephine Byrum, Mildred Setters and Martha Lane! John Rutledge, the big producing man, is rumored thataway about Marie Dillon, ex-chorine—The Chester Buckinghams (Lucille Singleton) are Reno-vating—They'll have company in the Tom Carneys (Lillian Kelly) and the Morris Levines (Leona Cohen). And Caster-Knotting again after all these years—Marion Kiningham, Anna Millspaugh, Georgia Gilliland, Rose Frankel and Margaret Ruth May!—Could this be so?—An orchid to Mary Louise Ewing for squeezing a diamond brooch out of Robert (Scotty) Kimbrough—Another to Alma Roberta Mullins for a superb performance in "The Flop." Seen in Candyland with a different escort every day the past week—Lorraine Compton—Look out, Annyce Lanius!—and s'long—"

The State page—the last of the edition I noticed—carried final returns of De Kalb County's invitation hog-calling contest. Winners in order named were: Men—Barney Alder, Lloyd Fodge, Douglas Jones, James Stewart and Herman Bland; Women—Jennie Summers, Mildred Fairbetter, Evelyn Daimwood, Ethelyn Couts and Nellie Gebhardt.

That was all. The entire paper had been scoured from front to back.

I folded it carefully as if it were a fragile treasure. It was that to me. Then, taking a last lingering look at those bleak, gray walls, refilling my ears with some of Jim's mumbling and trying to clear my mind of the thousands of reminiscences scrambling around inside, I left.

-ELROD GRIMSLEY

The Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class

Once upon a time there was a fisherman. The fisherman had a son named Willie. Now Willie was a queer lad; after taking ten years to finish the second grade he said there was no use so he would go out to seek his fortune. After seeking for a while Willie found a job in a large candy mint factory testing mints.

"But," I says to Grossman, "this is not supposed to be a bedtime story, it is supposed to be the Last Will and Testament of the Hume-Fogg Class of 1934."

"Well," answered Laurence, "Willie will testamint."

Ladies and gentlemen, we, Steve McGaw and Laurence Grossman, do hereby will and bequeath all our worldly goods, as follows:

"Rotten wood cannot be carved." - Confucius

As is my custom when in mental stress, Or when I'm lonely, Or when (what's worse) I've got me in a mess Or maybe only Feelin' slightly morbid more or less, (You see I'm homely), I sought out friendly Hafiz, (Have YOU been where his cave is?) A hermit of the ancient saintly mould, (The thinness of his garment makes him cold, For he's poor as Gandhi—just a single fold— And in winter in his cave it gets quite cold). A man in-es-ti-ma-bly wise, And with a pair of big blue eyes, That shine Or make brine As his spirit moves to phi-los-o-phize. And when I had seated me at his feet, And explained my troubles in accents weak, He soothed my mind with fables wise:

The writer, having become bored and tired of life, seeketh out the Hermit Hafiz, in whom is lodged all earthly wisdom, and who comforteth him with parables.

I.

"Lo! upon the threshold of a mighty keep Appeared a timid soul, and climbed the stairway steep, And when at length he gained the top, His dripping brow he began to mop. Down upon him bore an ogre with ugly roar, And said to him, 'It is your fate to have to climb some more!' And when again he reached the top, His dripping brow he continued to mop. In a large bare room were others who cowered with fright At the least indication of danger, tho' ever so slight, And though for long he stayed at the top, His dripping brow he still had to mop. At last assigned he sat down at a desk, They seized him, booked him, and gave him a test, His kerchief had long been nought but a sop, But his dripping brow he continued to mop. Through long weary hours our hero remained, His body was chained, and his brow still stained! Although for long he had perched at the top,

At times he still dripped, he still had to mop.

There approachesh the steps of a gloomy donjon, a weary Freshman, in great timidsty. He climbeth.

There advanceth a Teacher—He climbeth again!

He findeth more Freshmen in an upstairs room:

He is assigned to his place of persecution.

He remaineth long hours in the donjon.

At length his deliverance came—a Freshman no more, He knew his way 'round, though sent to the end of a floor.

E'en now when perhaps his books he would drop, He'd again have occasion his brow to mop.

There are three things that helped him along, and kept him from being stopped—

They were, O Foolish One, perseverance, and patience, and keeping his brow well mopped.

And now when at last he could leave the top, His brow no longer he had to mop."

And I listened intently to Hafiz the sage, and the figments of his brain,

For so had MY troubles begun. And thus Hafiz the wise began again:

At last be emergeth triumphant.

From these sordid events Hafiz

Hafiz beginneth again, with the Fable of a Janior.

II.

"There was once a man who thought him to be The ultimate of all, both on land and sea. With haughtiness high he held his head—

'Superiority,' was all that they said.

He did know more than a few
And as much as some others, too,
But still he was mostly puff,
He'd boast often more than enough,
And oftener still till one curled;
UNTIL along came a man of the world,
He punctured this blundering dunce
And let all his air out at once.
'Twas a churlish deed of the lout,
But the kindest and best without doubt.
The wise one (More power to him!)

Our hero didn't sue him,
But instead he awoke,
Himself a bloke
He saw. So, 'Oke'
He said, 'but a bloke
I'll be no longer.'

And he in this resolution grew Stronger and stronger.

His hours no longer were blue For he worked and his play was his work. He did and was done by, but learned it was best To do and never his task to shirk.

And when he had finished his regular work, 'Twas the usual thing for him to quest, After more and varied things;

After more and varied things;
Despite his task he sings,
For in them he finds his joy.
His hands he has learned to employ,
And his brain with its bountiful store

Having left the lowly ranks of the Freshmen, the Junior groweth proud, haughty, and overhearing.

He is deflated.

He awaketh to his folly.

He maketh a resolution.

He worketh hard and enjoyeth his work.

From whence Hafiz draweth a second moral.

Of what shall be wasted no more:

Common sense.

No pence

He earns with his diligent toil But pleasures that need no oil. To all he does his all he gives, And more than ever he lives!"

And Hafiz paused. I had listened as one in a dream,
For now I knew, despite how far off he'd seem,
That lo! he had spoken of me!
Of what I had been and done,
And more, what I ought to be.
And now again he'd begun:

The writer recognizeth the analogy. Hafiz relateth the Parable of the Sentors

III

"There once was a pearl of great price."
Twas hidden 'neath snow and ice—
Far under the sands of a bay,

Far under the turf and clay.

Although it was hidden to eye, it was not hidden to mind, Often seekers of treasure with diligence tried to find

This treasure of matchless beauty. Some even sought it from duty.

There were rich, there were poor, there were people of every class;

Experienced seekers, they gathered around in a mass; Some dug deep, some dug shallow, some sifted the sand,

Some in a frenzy dug with a hand.

Some who thought they had gained the pearl

Raised it up, to find it but glass. Some at length abandoned the toil, But others kept on to the last.

The story was that the pearl was lone, But ah! If this they had only known:

It's not for him of haughty spleen, It's not for him in weakness mean

It's not who's first, it's not who's last,

It's not for him who worketh fast:

A pearl awaits for every hand

That digs down deep in the sand;

A pearl awaits for every hand That sifts and weighs the sand."

Thus spoke the hermit Hafiz.

There lieth hidden a great treasure:

the jewel of True Education.

Many from every land seek this treasure.

Many think they have found it but are mistaken.

Hasiz draweth the moral: that the treasure awaits for all who search with diligence.

Class Oration

Today as we come together in a mind dedicated to this occasion, we desire to express our regret in that we are compelled now to see our days of high school life, together with their pleasant associations, fade away into the dim memories of the past.

Now as we take leave from Hume-Fogg we wonder, "What shall our next step be?" Let us now while time pemits, build air-castles towering to the skies, for it is said that dreamers are the saviors of the world. He who cherishes a beautiful vision, a lofty ideal in his heart, will one day realize it. Columbus cherished a vision of another world, and he discovered it. Buddha upheld a vision of a spiritual world of stainless beauty and perfect peace, and he entered it. Let us cherish our visions and our ideals. Let us cherish the music that stirs in our hearts, the beauty that forms in our minds. If we remain true to these visions and these ideals, our world will be a fit place in which to live.

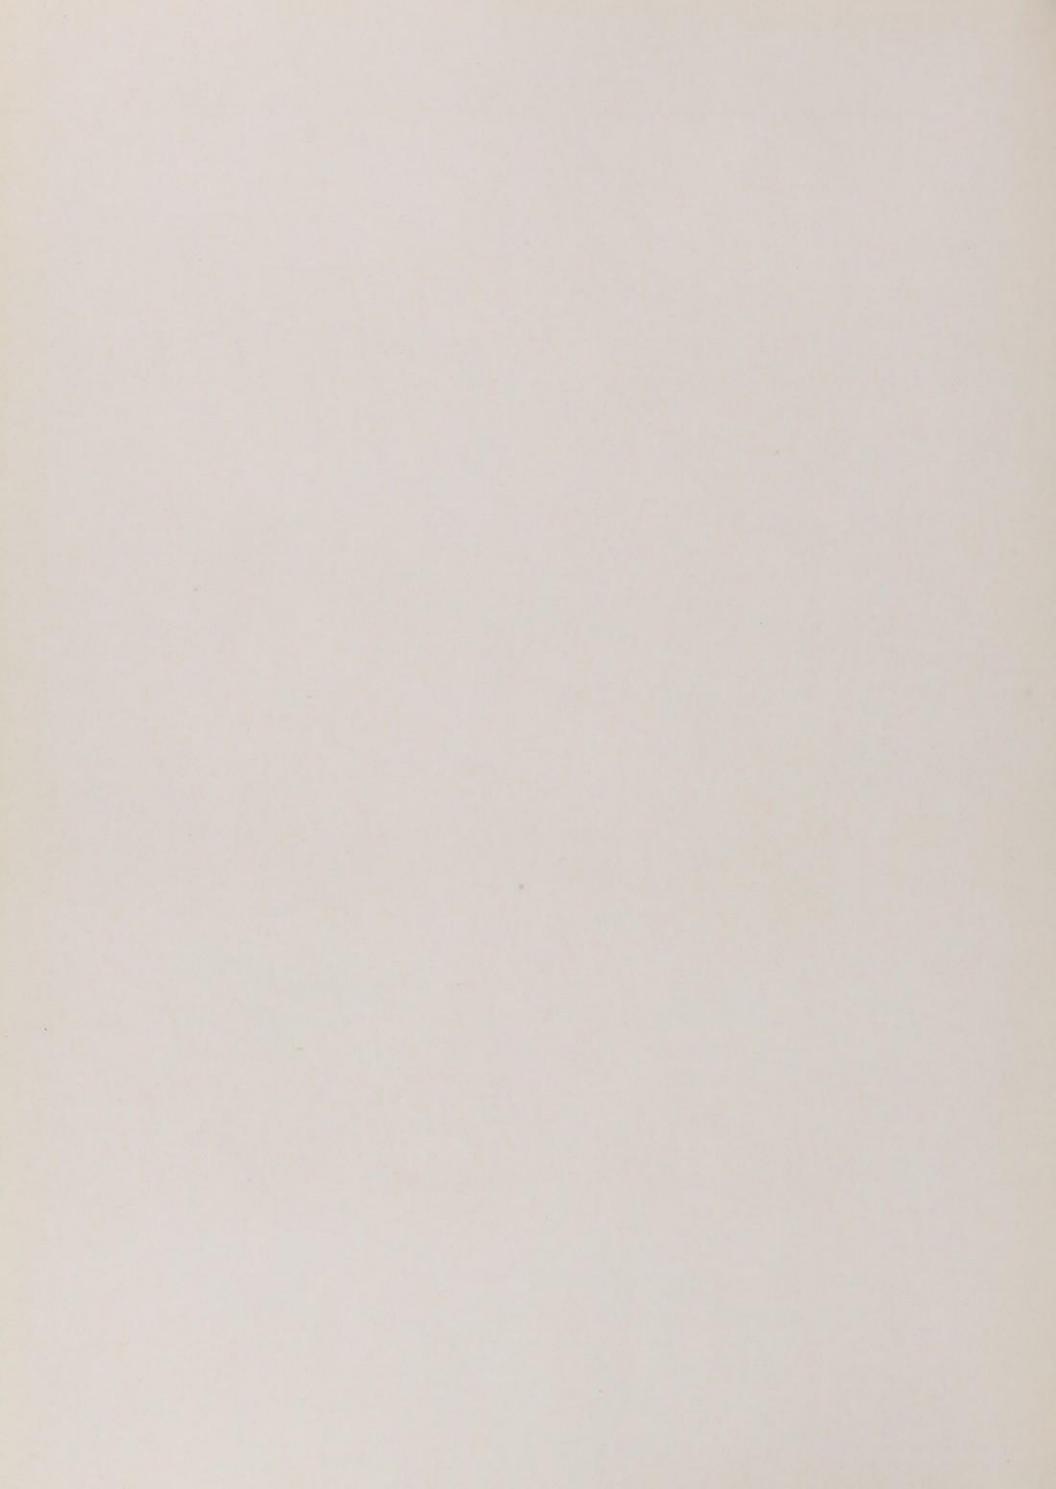

Self-control conquers many difficulties of our lives. Good thought helps us to master evil temptations and to adjust ourselves to our environments. Calmness is the power which helps to overcome all disturbed situations. Let us struggle, then, for these attributes, for we need them in this changing world of ours.

The Student Cooperative Organization

OFFICERS

Fall 1933					Spring 1934
Hugh Miser				President	Frank Medearis
HAROLD EDDERSON	20		14	Vice-President	PAUL KIDD
NELLIE HARRIS		(4)		Secretary	. Mary Eleanor Harris

The work of the Student Cooperative Organization of Hume-Fogg has been a great success during the year. The organization, composed of one boy and girl representative from each session room, with the aid and cooperation of the students and faculty, accomplished much and laid a foundation for greater work next year.

Outstanding among its accomplishments are the following:

- 1. A Club Book has been made which states the place and time of each club meeting.
- 2. A Lunch Room Squad has been organized. This consists of one person, preferably a council delegate, at each lunch table who sees to it that all used dishes and papers are put in their proper places.
- 3. Guards have been placed at each entrance. They prevent students from leaving or entering school unless authorized.
- 4. Guards have been placed in the locker rooms. This eliminates smoking or any other disorderly conduct in these places.

Efforts are being made to obtain a reduced fare for students on street cars. The Council is also trying to get soap and towels placed in the rest rooms.

The following standing committees have been established:

- 1. The Legislative Committee
- 2. The Attendance Committee
- 3. The Courtesy Committee
- 4. The Publicity Committee
- 5. The Welfare Committee
- 6. The Scholarship Committee
- 7. The Program Committee
- 8. The Character Building Committee
- 9. The Ways and Means Committee
- 10. The Social Committee

A clerk and assistant-clerk have been appointed to assist the secretary.

An attendance campaign was started during the spring term and a banner was given on each floor every month to the session room having the best attendance. The campaign is said to have improved attendance considerably during its tenure.

The Student Cooperative Organization is thus, step by step, making much progress towards a full-fledged student government.

The Library

The Hume-Fogg Library was opened for the use of the student body in the fall of 1931. It now contains 6000 volumes, completely catalogued and classified according to the Dewey Decimal system. Over fifty periodicals and newspapers are received regularly. At the beginning of each term all first year students are given a course of twelve lessons on the "use of books and libraries," consisting of citizenship in a library, the classification system, the card catalog, the physical make-up of books, dictionaries, encyclopedias, special reference books, the Readers Guide to Periodical Literature, bibliography and note-taking.

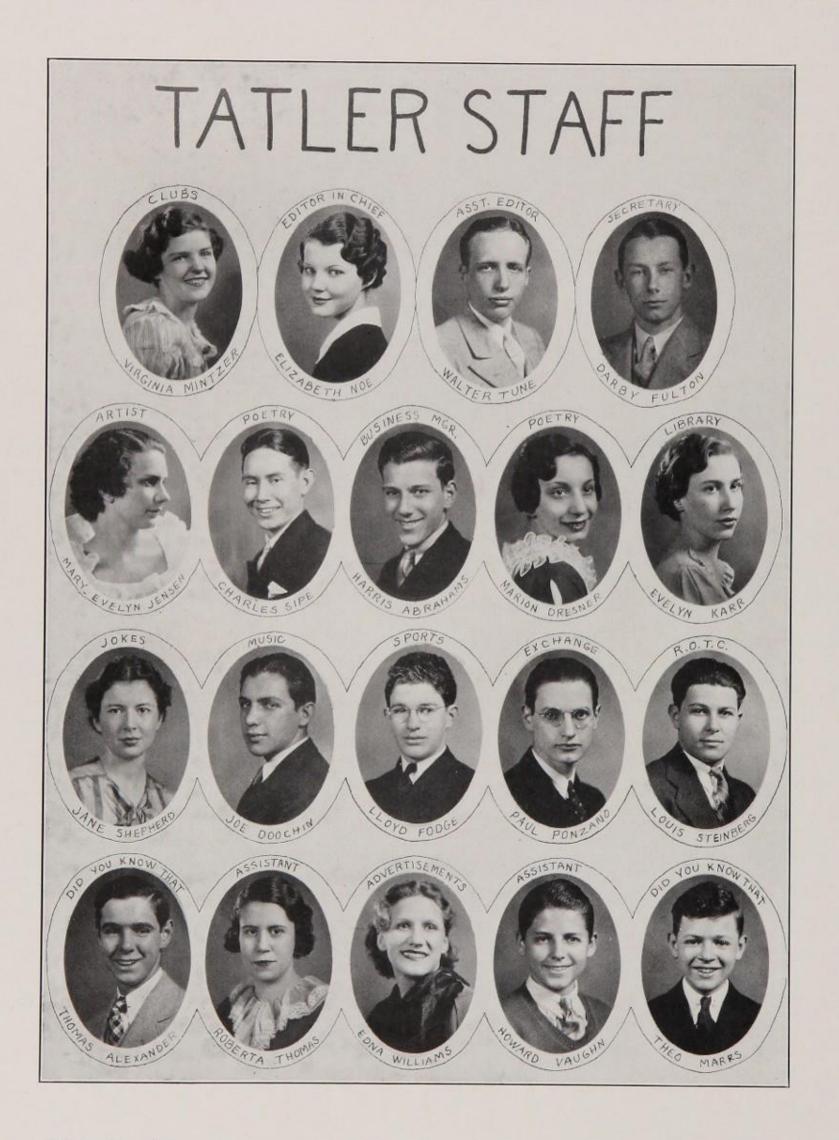

The library staff is composed of students who assist in the administration of the routine duties of the library, such as the circulation of recreation and reserve books, checking attendance records, carding and shelving books, recording and filing periodicals, sending overdue notices, and delivering permits. These students are selected at the beginning of each term, because of their special aptitude for the work, and are required to maintain a satisfactory degree of scholarship. They are given special training in the work, and stand an examination on library methods and procedures. The staff members meet once a month for special discussion of library problems and news in Hume-Fogg as well as in other school libraries in the country. A library column, containing brief reviews of books, magazine articles and news of the library world is furnished each week for the Tatler by the members of the staff. Football

As regards games won and lost one might call the 1933 football season at Hume-Fogg a failure. But when we consider fight, determination, and loyalty to the school, the season was a great success. For those twenty-odd boys who were out there fighting for the Blue and White were imbued with the same old Hume-Fogg spirit that had swept the Blue Devils of former years to numerous championships. It may truthfully be said that, although they won but one game, those Blue Devils never succumbed until the final whistle blew.

Handicapped at the start by the loss of all but four letter-men, either by graduation or by transference to the newly-formed East High, the boys progressed rapidly, and toward the end of the season, proved to be a serious aspirant to the City Championship. But along came the traditional rival, Central, with eleven thoroughly experienced veterans, and blew Hume-Fogg aside, 21-6.

Two trips were taken by the team during the season, one to Chattanooga, where they were defeated by City High, 14-0, and one to Knoxville, where they were nosed out, 7-0. The lone win of the year came at the expense of Du Pont, 7-0. Three ties were played, with Dresden, East, and Lewisburg. The scores were, respectively, 6-6, 7-7, and 6-6.

And now with the woes of 1933 left behind, we turn our eyes toward the coming season, and see what sort of material we have with which to build another champion such as we had in 1932.

Chances for such a team were never better. Only three positions are left vacant by graduation, and these will be filled by capable reserves of last season. The two ends, John Shapiro (All-City, 1933), and Ralph Emerson, and one tackle, Laurence Grossman, will be missing when the role is called that fair September day. Otherwise, the team returns intact, which means that it will be about eighty per cent more experienced than in '33. And with an eighty per cent improvement, nothing should bar Hume-Fogg from a Championship in 1934!

Basketball

People expected too much of the 1934 basketball team. The 1933 bearers of the Blue and White had won a City Championship for Coach Slim Porter in his first year at the helm of Hume-Fogg's basketball ship. So, naturally, everyone expected another winner in '34. But they were disappointed.

Hume-Fogg got off to a good start, with five wins in the first six starts. But then something went wrong; the team began to lose, and continued to lose till the end of the season, winning only one of the remaining nine games.

The Blue Devils entered the District Tournament as underdogs, being doped to go no farther than the first game; but with typical Hume-Fogg spirit, they came through and defeated Litton, 21-15, and advanced to the semi-finals. But their next opponents were the undefeated East team and the Devils were eliminated, 20-25.

Worthy of praise for their work in furthering Hume-Fogg's basketball fortunes, are Frank Rutherford, dependable guard, and captain of the team; "Hog" Waller, high scoring forward; R. J. Hewitt, diminutive sharp-shooter, and John Shapiro, the most outstanding athlete that Hume-Fogg has seen in many a day.

Four of the five 1934 regulars will be swept away by graduation. Only Waller will remain to carry on in '35. But the capable reserves, who, time after time were rushed in to relieve the tired first team, will be ready to step in and fill the shoes of those who have gone.

What will the season of 1935 bring forth? Perhaps we will have another mediocre season. But, again, we may have a Champion, as we had in '33. If courage and solid determination make a winner there is no doubt but that the pennant of victory will float once more above the stately halls of old Hume-Fogg.

Baseball

"Hume-Fogg to have finest pitching staff in the city," read an article in one of the local papers late last winter, "with Henry Heer, Bill Hinderer, Eldon Smith, stars of last year's team, and Paul Fly, former Central ace, all ready for action." Not so long afterwards, these words appeared in the same paper: "Blue Devil coach mourns loss of crack hurling corps; Bill Hinderer has quit school, Eldon Smith has decided not to come out for baseball, and Paul Fly and Henry Heer are ineligible." The situation looked black, indeed, but it wasn't quite as bad as it seemed; Eldon Smith did come out, and Heer was able to get eligible, and they, with Stanley Farris, formed a very capable pitching staff.

Coach "Slim" Porter had few worries when it came to shaping his infield and outfield. Three lettermen returned for infield duty: John Shapiro, at first base; Captain R. J. Hewitt, second base; and Bill Goodman, at third. Francis Bowers plugged the gap at short stop, assisted by Tommy Jones, who was ineligible during the early part of the season; while Roy Wallace also saw infield duty. Lettermen Gotto and Glascock filled two of the outfield positions, and the other was alternated between Jimmy Waller, and Harry Riley; Albert Woodall served as a reserve flychaser. The catching duties were taken care of by Grady Jones, Douglas Jones, and Jack Peebles. Andrew Nixon was manager of the team.

Although at time of going to press little more than half the scheduled games have been played, the baseballers have practically assured themselves of a better record than any other Hume-Fogg athletic team of this year. They have won five of the nine games played, are in fourth place in the Nashville Interscholastic Baseball League, and are conceded an excellent chance of gaining a higher position. The play of the Blue Devils has been featured by the fielding of Tom Glascock, the allround play of Captain Hewitt, and the pitching of Henry Heer, who has worked in almost every contest. The results of the games played thus far appear below. Games remain to be played with Wallace, Peabody, Gordonsville, East (three games), and T. I. S.

BOXING AND WRESTLING TEAM

Boxing and Wrestling

Hume-Fogg's boxing and wrestling teams started out this year with unusually bright propects, the former returning three members of last year's team—Melvin Black, Claude Faris, and Jack Setters; and the latter, six—Red Swetland, Billy Smith, Jordan Kinnard, Charles Neil, Harold Epperson, and John Berry, all capable performers.

The first match for the wrestling team was with the Y. M. C. A. Although the team as a whole showed great improvement over last year, Hume-Fogg lost to the experienced "Y" matmen by five points. The next and only other important match of the season was the City Tournament, held at the Y. M. C. A. Hume-Fogg entered at least one man in each weight division and was rewarded with one or more wins in each class in the first round. The team continued its success in the later rounds, but, unfortunately, fate stepped in and two of our star wrestlers became ill and were unable to compete further. However, John Berry, in the heavyweight division, and Harold Epperson, 145 pounds, carried on into the finals. Berry met Buford "Baby" Ray, Central High giant, and, although outweighed some fifty or sixty pounds, he put up such a fight that Ray only won by seven seconds time advantage after a terrific struggle that went into overtime. This was conceded to be the best match of the tournament. Epperson pinned Ray Buerer of T. I. S. in five minutes, and thereby won Hume-Fogg's only championship. Later, Harold was given the trophy presented by the Y. M. C. A. to the best all-round wrestler in the tournament.

Although for the boxing team as well as for the wrestlers there was a great scarcity of meets for the team as a whole, nevertheless the boys received a great deal of individual competition. The most talented of the boxers was Melvin Black. Stricken with measles the day before he was to appear in the finals of the local Golden Gloves tournament, the hard-hitting little flyweight came back late in the season to go to the finals of the Tri-State meet in Memphis. Jack Keefe, emerged victorious in his division in the Golden Gloves meet here and went to Chicago with the Nashville group. None of the other fighters stood out as particularly brilliant, but the whole team showed promise, and the chances for a great team next year are excellent.

Dick Givans, Athletic Instructor at the Y. M. C. A., succeeded Mr. Grace as coach, and deserves not only a great deal of thanks for handling the team, but also a great deal of praise for doing the job so well.

TRACK SNAPS

Track

Hume-Fogg's latest model of a track team, beset with a lack of sufficient training, scarcity of material and the loss of several good men, from various causes, managed to struggle through what might be called only a fair season. Our new coach, Max F. Mortimer, had to work up a team from among three returning lettermen and a few others, and then take them into a meet after about four days of practice. The first meet was with East Nashville High, and the Eagles' superiority was graphically indicated by the score—56 1/2 to 28 1/2. Charley Neil was high point man for the Blue Devils with eleven points, getting second in both dashes and first in the discus. John O'Connor, in the pole vault, and Charles Marks, in the quarter, took HumeFogg's only other firsts.

Central High was met next, and the Hume-Fogg team made a decidedly better showing by holding the strong Central aggregation to a 57 1/6 to 43 5/6 victory. Each team made six firsts, but Central's superiority in the weight events made the difference. For the Blue and White, Neil was again high point man with eleven, Marks got ten, Grant eight, O'Connor seven and two-thirds, and David Irons, two and two-thirds. Exactly a week later, Hume-Fogg at last hung up that longed-for victory. Cookeville Central came down to Dudley Field and was conquered, 65 to 36. Neil, for the third time, led the team, with eighteen and one-half points. He took a first, four seconds, and tied for another second. Joe Bayer hung up fourteen and one-half points, getting two firsts, a second, and a tie for second. Marks won a first and a second; Grant took a first and two seconds; O'Connor won a first and a second; and Irons picked up a first.

Following this meet, the Vanderbilt Freshmen romped on us, 62 to 38, but the meet was relatively unimportant, and only served to prepare the team for the County Meet at East Stadium. In this latter, the first invitation meet of the year, Hume-Fogg managed to take third place with twenty-six and one-half points as East and Central placed one-two in that order. John O'Connor, with a first in the pole vault and a second in the high jump, took eight points, and Marks gathered a like number with a first in the half and a second in the quarter, as Charley Neil dropped to a mere five points. Hume-Fogg took second in the relay.

Coach Mortimer took five men, Neil, O'Connor, Marks, Grant, and Bayer, up to the Mid-State meet at T. P. I., and the five pulled down a poor fourth behind Central, East, and Cookeville Central, with sixteen and one-half points. Charles Marks took our only first, in the quarter, and made six points, while Neil took five, O'Connor three and one-half, and Grant one. Grant had a good lead in the hurdle race, when he hit the next to the last hurdle, lost his stride, and ended up fourth. Hume-Fogg's showing in the State Meet was not exactly magnificent. John O'Connor's share of a quadruple tie for third in the high jump gave us our total of three-fourths of a point! However, a majority of the team will return next year, and a better showing is expected then. Wade Foster did an excellent job of managing the team, and Coach Mortimer deserves a great deal of praise for the way in which he handled his difficult task.

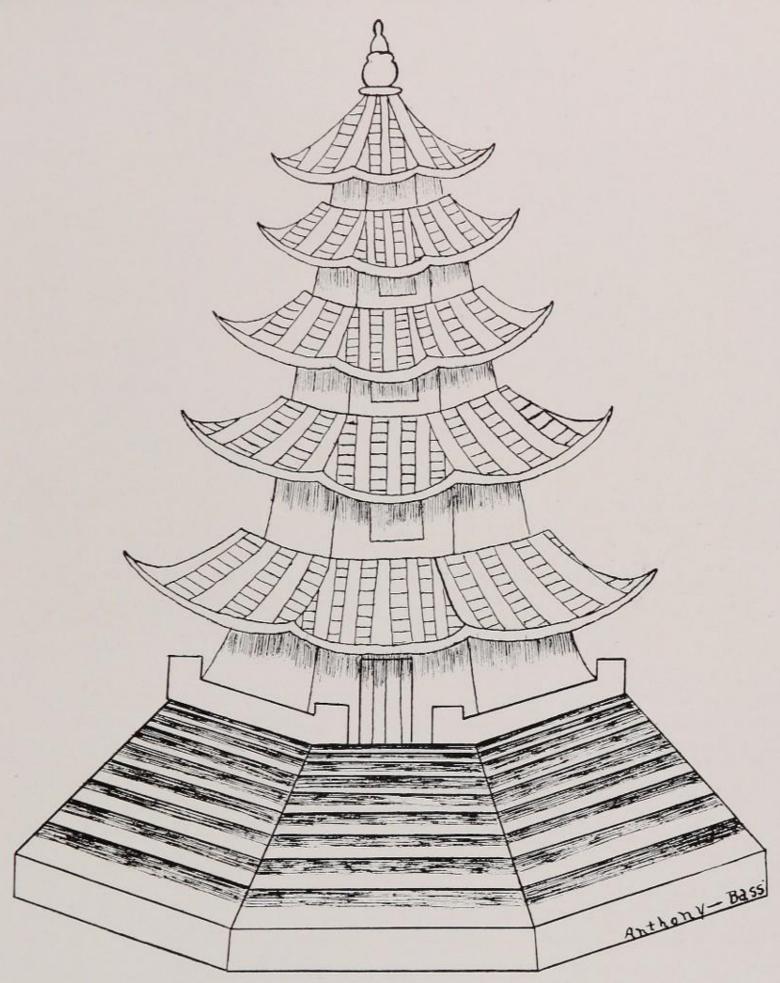

Tennis and Golf

The Hume-Fogg tennis team had no veteran stars returning for the '34 season, but it managed to go through an extensive campaign against prep and high schools of this vicinity with a highly commendable record. The two most capable players were Charles Booker and James Roberts, the former winning a considerable majority of his matches in the duel meets and Roberts distinguishing himself especially by reaching the semi-finals of the local Interscholastic Tournament. Both of these aces are slated to return next year. Other representatives of Hume-Fogg on the courts were Richmond Blackmer, Edgar Hertenstein, Eugene Pigg, Dick Christian, Donald McClearen and Tate Hutton.

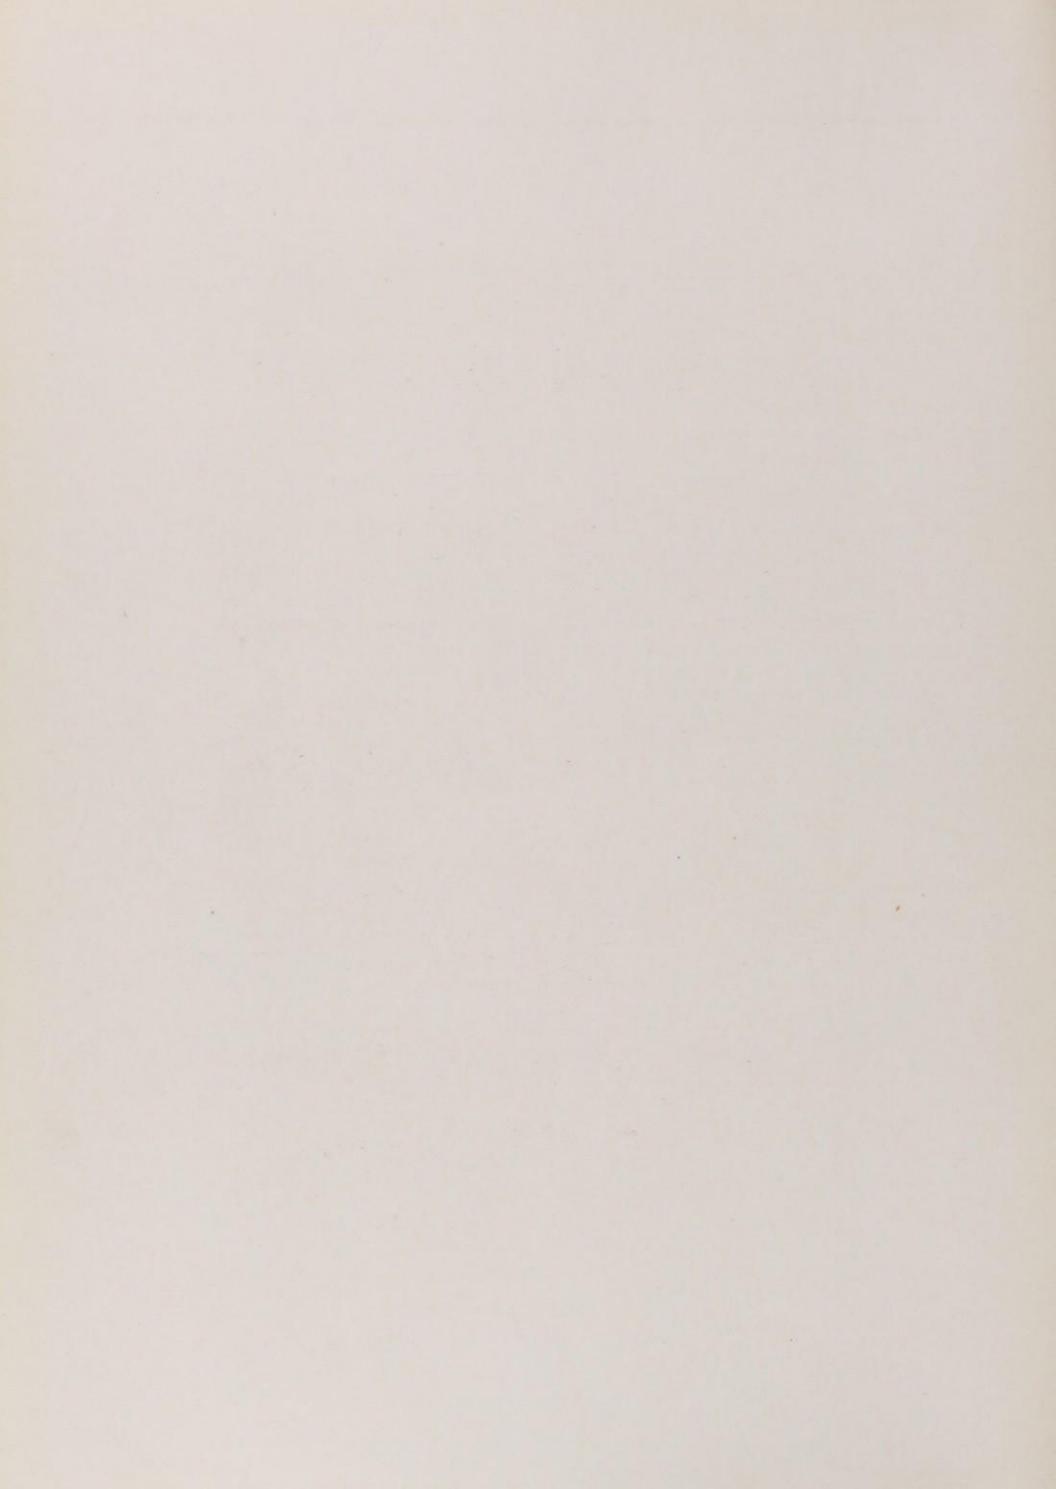

Hume-Fogg is proud to have been a member of the first Prep-High School Golf League of Nashville. The league was most successful under the direction of Prof. Carney of Isaac Litton. It was composed of seven teams, each team playing every other team two matches, making it fair and equal for everyone. Members of the Hume-Fogg team were: Walter Davis, number one player; Albert Feldman, number two; Tillman Cavert, number three; and Charles Booth, and Barry Sample, alternating at number four position. Although the team's record consists mostly of defeats, the boys were fighting and trying their best in every match.

The Hume-Fogg R.O.T.C. Officers Club

OFFICERS

The purpose of the Officers Club is to promote the welfare of the Hume-Fogg R. O. T. C. and to create an atmosphere of friendship among the cadets of that organization. This aim is accomplished: first, by studying and discussing various movements of the drill and planning for the betterment of the R. O. T. C.; second, by giving social functions and other entertainments that appeal to the members.

Formerly there were two R. O. T. C. clubs: the Officers Club and the Sergeants Club. The Officers Club consisted of Commissioned Officers only, the Sergeants Club was composed of both sergeants and commissioned officers. Due to the small number of members in each club, the two voted to consolidate. The two clubs merged into what is now known as the Hume-Fogg Officers Club. The new club began its year with the members of the two old clubs and three freshmen officers, all of whom were admitted as charter members after the initiation of the freshmen.

The club has proved very active since its reorganization. It was the sponsor of "The Awkward Squad" in Stunt Night, which received much applause. The club ended a very successful year by giving a yachting party on the Cumberland river.

The Barnard Astronomical Club, under the capable supervision of its senior sponsor, Mrs. Marvin McFerrin, has had a very interesting and valuable program for the year. This club includes some of the city's finest young astronomers, one of whom, Edward Gaddes, made the club's telescope. Two others, Herman Lusky and Karl Weiland, have completed a map of Nashville, locating the important spots in the life of Edward Emerson Barnard, for whom the club is named. One of the highlights of the year was the reading of an original paper on the life of Barnard by Mrs. Lawrence Bryant, junior sponsor, at a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. McFerrin. Another interesting social affair was the picnic at Centennial Park and the later trip to Vanderbilt Observatory. The speakers for the year included Dr. Edward Mims, who addressed the entire student body in the auditorium, Mr. Latimer Wilson, who illustrated his talk with slides, Miss Mary Louise Goodwin, Miss Corinne Cavert, Miss Katherine Bowman, Mrs. C. B. Owsley, Miss Adelaide Lyon, Dan Marshall and Clifford Love.

The Hume-Fogg Dramatic Club under the untiring leadership of Mrs. Inez

Alder, has had a most advantageous year.

The season opened triumphantly with a roaring farcial comedy "Give Me Credit." This was soon followed by the difficult, internationally-known comic opera "The Mikado," in which the club assisted the Music Club.

By far the best production seen at Hume-Fogg for some time was "Little Women." The scenery and lighting effects formed a splendid background for the artistic performances rendered by the four "Little Women" and the capable supporting cast in Louisa May Alcott's immortal story.

The two remaining productions of the Dramatic Club, the Vaudeville and the Senior play, were well received. The Senior play, the farce comedy, "A Full House" climaxed the success of the year.

The purpose of the Hi-Y Club is clearly set forth in the statement "to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." The Hi-Y organization is found in high and prep schools all over the United States and represents the connecting link between high school and Y. M. C. A. work.

The club has made very great progress under the able leadership of Steve McGaw. Starting out with the remnants of last year's club, McGaw has developed the club into an enthusiastic, co-operative group with the good of the Hi-Y as its main objective.

Each Tuesday some well-known speaker talked to members of the club. Various interesting subjects were discussed at the meetings.

Among the activities of the club during the year were charity work during the Christmas holidays, when each member of the club brought some article to give to a needy family; and a dance given in January at the Log Cabin.

A Hi-Y Minstrel, non-existent for the past few years, was presented by the club May 11th. This Minstrel was successfully presented and well received. The club also had an act in Stunt Night.

During the past year the French Club has had for sponsors Miss Handly, Miss Crawford, and Miss Dembsky.

The club has welcomed as new members a number of students of the first year French classes.

Early in the year, Professor Rochedieu, of the French Department at Vander-bilt, visited the club. He told an interesting fable in French.

Mrs. Chappell, a native of Paris, spoke at the meeting before Christmas. The subject of her talk was the French holidays. She compared these to those celebrated in America.

Mrs. Preston, who was born in Corsica and lived in Marseilles and in Paris, gave a most interesting talk on the life and customs of Corsica. She illustrated her talk with a large number of beautiful pictures.

In addition to these three speakers, the members of the club took part in many other good programs.

The Music Club this year had an enrollment of one hundred members, all of whom have been very active and enthusiastic in their work.

As a result of some of the club's efforts, a quartette and orchestra have been organized.

The Forum, Hume-Fogg's debating club, is one of the most popular organizations in the school. It has over one hundred members and many interested visitors who are present at every meeting. The large membership is due in a great degree to the varied and unusual programs which make the club unique. Debates on subjects of national, international, and local importance are held, with each speaker vicing for honors. During the year many interesting debates were held, the subjects of some being, "Hume-Fogg Should Give Frequent Gym Dances," "Examinations as a Basis for Promotion Should be Abolished," "The United States Army Should Fly the Mail," "Secret Organizations of High School Students Should be Prohibited," and "Patriotism is the Greatest Menace to World Peace." In addition to the debates, open forum and jury panel discussions were held. Much of the success of the Forum is due to Miss Katherine Allen, the sponsor, who arranges the programs and takes a deep interest in all the activities of the club.

The programs this year, though lightened by music and by an occasional contest or a "take-off" on some phase of school life, have definitely furthered the purpose of the club, namely, to foster and direct interest in higher education. College entrance requirements, classification of institutions, the honor systems, catalogues, reviews, brief histories of great collegians, and a debate on the relative advantages of the large and the small college, found a place on the program.

Three guest speakers appeared before the club. In the fall term Miss Louise Herron of Vanderbilt, Columbia, and the University of London, told of her recent experiences in England. In the spring Mr. Thomas C. Barr of Davidson College and of Union Theological Seminary, New York, gave excellent points on how to get the best out of college training, and Miss Virginia Nees, a freshman in Peabody, spoke on her personal impressions of college life.

In accordance with College Club traditions, social ties among the members were strengthened by two outings, a wiener roast in the fall, and a "hike" in the spring.

The Commercial Club has been very fortunate this year in having both inspirational and practical business talks made by some of the most influential men and women of Nashville: namely, Rev. Prentice Pugh, Mr. Charles Mitchel, Dr. J. L. Hill, Miss Sarah Staley, Mr. Charles Keyes, Mr. Lipscomb of the Hume-Fogg Science Department, Miss Nelle Roche, and Rev. I. W. Gernert.

One interesting feature of the year was a personally conducted trip through two specialty houses—Armstrong's and Sterchi's. At Armstrong's the whole plan of the store was explained, showing the more modern ways of equipping stores.

The club had its annual outing in Shelby Park the latter part of May.

Other interesting phases of the year's work have been the Open House to celebrate the completion of the new clubroom, 419; participation in Stunt Night with a skit and refreshments service; and the annual Mother's Day tea.

According to the dictionary the word philological means the science of the history of words. The members of the Hume-Fogg Philological Club will tell, however, that they have enjoyed a more liberal interpretation of its meaning this year.

The club was organized through the suggestion and leadership of Mrs. T. E. Durrett, Jr. and Miss Frances Ausban, and they have inspired it to carry out a program of unusual interest and fascination.

Original poems, short stories and many other types of creative work have been the result of the club's efforts. Short stories, operas, and one act plays (the latter being dramatized) were studied. In order to carry on a well rounded program the club has had many unusual meetings that were highly entertaining as well as instructive. Mr. Walter Sharp, of Vanderbilt University spoke to the club twice. His subject on the first occasion was the development of the short story and second, a review of the opera, "Pagliacci." Parties, also, came in for their share of attention.

During the past year the Hume-Fogg German Club enjoyed many eminent speakers. First was the internationally known reader and dramatic impersonator, Mr. Max Montor from Vienna, Austria. Mr. Montor's visit to the club was an honor, as he had heretofore appeared only before universities and colleges. He gave readings in German from Schiller's "Wilhelm Tell," and from poems by Hebbel. The selections in English which Mr. Montor gave were from "Nathan der Weise" by Lessing, and from the "Merchant of Venice" by Shakespeare. Other speakers of the city were: Dr. Jackson and Dr. Mayfield of Vanderbilt University, and Dr. Roehm of Peabody College.

A delightful Christmas party was given at the home of one of the members, Herr Frank Medearis; several outings were held at Percy Warner Park.

The Citizenship Club, organized in the fall of 1932, has been one of the most active organizations of Hume-Fogg. The purpose of the club is to promote good citizenship and to encourage the students to carry out the ideals of good citizenship in both the school and civil government.

The club won recognition in the fall of 1933 by directing the activities of a group of students in the Public Works bond issue for schools.
